The Origin of the Clubman Handlebar

After World War II motorcycle racing in England resumed. The economy was in ruins and money was naturally tight. Many would be racers joined a motorcycle racing club and used their daily means of transport to race. As always, some were better off financially and could spend more money to enhance performance. "Clip-on" handlebars were fitted to the fork tubes to enable a crouching position to obtain less wind resistance. This was an extra expense many could not afford. Some clubs then brought in a rule that only the original handlebar clamp mounts could be used. It didn't take long for someone to figure out making a handlebar that fitted the original mounts that "dropped" them to allow a crouching position. They were also known as "drop bars". Thus the term "clubman" handlebar.

Classic Catalog

Model Years
1960 to 2000

A grid of 50 classic motorcycles, arranged in 10 rows and 5 columns. The motorcycles are shown in profile, facing right. They represent various models from 1960 to 2000, including cruiser, sport, and dual-sport bikes. The colors and designs vary significantly, reflecting the evolution of motorcycle styling over the decades. The grid is enclosed in a thin black border.
